Parish Newsletter

20th November 2022

Today's Mass: OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST, KING OF THE UNIVERSE (Year C)

2 Samuel 5: 1-3, Psalm 121, Colossians 1: 12-20, Luke 23: 35-43

First Reading: David becomes the anointed king of Israel, a forerunner of his descendent Jesus Christ, King of the Universe.

Psalm: the psalmist expresses great joy at going to Jerusalem. For Christians this is a metaphor for our joy at going to the heavenly Jerusalem.

Second Reading: St Paul tells us what Christ's Lordship means. Before all time the Word was with the Father and Christ was the agent of creation, and even now He holds all things together. He is also the first-born from the dead: by His death on the Cross Christ reconciled all human beings and all things to the Father.

Gospel: Jesus is King because He is in ultimate control, even on the Cross, where He grants salvation to the penitent sinner. And He can draw good even out of evil. It is precisely by His self-sacrifice on the Cross that Christ can establish His Kingdom, "a kingdom of truth and life, a kingdom of holiness and grace, a kingdom of justice, love and peace" (from today's Preface).

Lead this king to the best treasure of all.

Jesus is a king like no other. Jesus is a king who shows us how to love, by serving other people. Some people do not believe a king would die on a cross. They laugh at Jesus. An unexpected person, a criminal, believes in Jesus. This thief will enjoy life with Jesus.

St Matthew: The Ecclesiastical Gospel

Next Sunday, the First of Advent, we revert to Year A and St Matthew's Gospel. Even though 'ekklesia' (Church) only occurs twice Matthew is often referred to as the 'ecclesiastical Gospel'.

What does this mean?

The role of Peter

The key text here is 16: 17-19: "You are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church .... I will give you the keys of the kingdom". However much Catholics and Protestants may disagree on the role of St Peter's successor, the Bishop of Rome, it is clear that Peter is seen as the foundation stone of the new Israel, the Church.

Peter's, and the Church's, authority to bind and loose does not mean that the Church decides and heaven merely rubber stamps the decision but, rather, the opposite. Heaven decides and the Church pronounces God's decision. This power belongs to Jesus Christ, but is delegated to Peter and the Church. We can debate how much the 'power of the keys' to bind and loose refers to disciplinary judgement and/or to teaching authority.

The Sermon on the Mount

The binding and loosing pronouncement comes in the middle of a passage about practical issues of church life, and this is a key theme of Matthew. The key text in this context is the Sermon on the Mount (Mt 5 - 7), which is only found in this Gospel, and which focuses on the nature and demands of discipleship.

It deals with the true character and rewards of discipleship (5: 3-12), the distinctiveness of the disciple (5: 13-16), the ethical demands of the disciple (5: 17-48), religious observance (6: 1-18), the disciple's priorities (6: 19-34), the disciple's attitude to fellow disciples (7: 1-6, 12) and to God (7: 7-11), and ends with contrasts between true and false discipleship (7: 13-27). The Sermon on the Mount has been a mainstay for preachers, teachers and catechists over the centuries, and there is little doubt that is what the author intended.

The ethical and practical teaching in the Sermon on the Mount culminates in the famous Golden Rule (7:12): "In everything do to others as you would have them do to you; for this is the law and the prophets". Although this is the sort of saying a Jewish rabbi would make, there is no parallel in rabbinic teaching: Jesus' words are new, radical, and far-reaching.

Discipleship

The word 'mathetes' (disciple) appears frequently in Matthew, and the command at the end of the Gospel (also unique to Matthew) offers a useful summary of what Christian discipleship involves: "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you" (28: 19-20).

First, a disciple is one Baptized in the name of God the Trinity. Secondly, the disciple obeys what Jesus has commanded and teaches this to others. The disciple is thus one who has a relationship with the Triune God and in particular with Jesus Christ, and is one who not only obeys God's commands but passes this on to other people.

Another important word in Matthew is 'follow'. The disciples are often described as following Jesus, but this means more than simply shadowing Him. It means adhering to His teaching, conforming their will to that of Christ. Notice that despite the occasions when Jesus taught the crowds – like the Sermon on the Mount – most of His teaching is addressed to the disciples alone, to whom a special revelation is given (even if the disciples are sometimes obtuse or deficient, as Peter often was).

The parable of the weeds and the wheat (13: 24-30)

Matthew understands that the Church consists of both bad (the weeds) and good (the wheat) disciples. All will be subject to judgement, so there is no room for complacency. Chapter 25, which includes the parable of the ten bridesmaids, makes it clear that is not those who say 'Lord, Lord' who will enter the kingdom of heaven but those who do the will of the Father.
